

ONLINE: Assistive Communication for Every Classroom

"I never knew how much of a difference communication tools can make for students with disabilities." – Yuri O.

Can students with disabilities learn more if they are able to communicate more? Are we, as teachers doing all that we can in order to facilitate better communication and learning for all students? Is a student's ability to learn connected to their communication ability in the classroom? If so, how do we address this challenge in the classroom?

This course answers these frequently asked questions. It is designed to introduce teachers to the different Assistive Communicative tools and strategies that can be employed to improve the communicative skills of students with disabilities. It aims at preparing teachers with the information and skills that are essential in the process of integration.

This course also shows teachers how to improve learning using various low-tech and high-tech Assistive Communication devices. It instructs teachers on how to identify and choose suitable devices and how to explore the laws promoting and supporting the use of these devices in the classroom. The suggestions, ideas and templates provided in the course will help teachers confidently apply these strategies in the classroom to support the needs of students with disabilities.

Standards:

This course aligns to all of the INTASC Standards including Learner Development, Learning Differences, Learning Environments, Content Knowledge, Assessment, Planning for Instruction and Instructional Strategies.

The course also aligns to the McRel Teacher Evaluation Standards including Teacher Leadership, Diverse Learners, Teachers Know Content and Teachers Facilitate Learning.
